THE WAPSEPINNICON TIGER.

BY HAMLIN GARLAND.

It was Saturday night in Rock River. Teams covered with the dust of the August roads stood in rows along the sidewalks. Harvesting was in full drive, and the town was filled with nomads from the south, men who had worked their way north following the isothermal line of ripening wheat.

Farmers had driven in for provisions, and their hands had come with them for an evening's outing. The streets swarmed with rough, lawless characters. Few women ventured abroad, but bands of yelling boys, feeling the unstable equilibrium of the atmosphere, fought or played up and down before the saloons which were crowded to the door.

The better class of farmers hitched up and drove away before 9 o'clock, gathering together as many of their hands as possible, but others remained to see the fun, which everyone felt to be coming.

It was reported that the "Wapsey gang" was in town. The Swedes from Rock Run were also well represented down at Ole's "Hole in the Wall." The Vesey boys and Steve Nagle had been seen, and last and most important, Bill O'Shea, "the Wapsey Tiger," was down at the red saloon.

Bill was brother to the deputy sheriff, who had been in his day the most feared of all the Wapsey gang. He it was who used to terrorize the constable and make men like Steve Nagle quail when, on his infrequent sprees, he took offense at the sound of their voices. He dominated the gang and ruled as if with naked sword in hand.

By the advice of Dr. Carver, Jim O'Shea had been made constable of the town. The doctor had quoted with great effect the experience of Boston in making the famous crook, Tukey, marshall, in the days when thugs ran the city in their own way. From being constable, Jim came naturally to be the deputy sheriff of the county. He had given up drink entirely.

Bill, also from the Wapsey prairie, was quiet enough ordinarily, but when in liquor was ferocious as a panther. At such times no one dared to oppose him nor lay hands upon him, that is, no one but his brother, the deputy. Every law-abiding citizen regretted the infrequent visits of the Wapsey Tiger.

Constable Ranney, a tall, mild-mannered man, grew more and more nervous as the night drew on and reports came in about Bill. He kept sedulously out of sight after 8 o'clock; in fact, he went to the Mayor's office for comfort and reinforcement. He made a feeble effort to cover his fright by saying to several of the uneasy citizens on the street:

"If I'm wanted, I'll be at the Mayor's office. I'm going up to consult him."

This deceived no one. Every man and boy in Rock River knew Ranney was afraid of Steve Nagle, to say nothing of O'Shea. They shouted cat calls at him as he went along the street, but they could not blame him very much. There was a sort of horse sense in keeping out of the Tiger's way.

The matter was being discussed in the Mayor's office. Ridings was there, and Judge Brown and two or three others. Foster, of the Saturday Morning Call, took a humorous view of the matter, the others did not. Foster quoted a line or two while sharpening a pencil.

"Now, 'whether Roderigo killed Cassio, or Cassio Roderigo, all makes my gain,' I'm getting news."

"We may pull through all right yet," said the Mayor, a small man of a scholarly turn of mind, not fitted to cope with such crises.

"Depends on how soon Bill gets whisky enough to put 'im to sleep," said Ridings, one of the Councilmen."

A wild volley of whoops arose on the street. Ranney turned pale, the Mayor started up in his chair, Ridings set his lips grimly.

"The fun begins," said Foster. "Ranney, why ain't you out there on the street? You'll miss something."

Ranney gave up all pretense. "I can hear just as well a little further off."

Judge Brown cleared his mouth of tobacco.

"Mr. Constable, we who are peaceable and not of powerful physical organization hire you to fight our battles for us. Mr. Mayor, order the constable to the scene of carnage."

The Mayor smiled faintly. "Mr. Constable, you know your duty."

"All too well," said Foster.

Another series of whoops, some maniacal laughter, and then a single wild voice in a sort of chant.

They all went to the window and looked out. Up the street, clearly outlined in the brilliant light of the moon, came the Tiger. He walked with a curious action as if his legs were made of steel springs. His bare feet glistened, his head was flung back in a wild gesture. He was Red Brian defying the English battle line on Balley Moor.

"Come out, ye sons o' dogs, ye all, ye white-livered whelps. Come to me arrums, come, smell o' me fist." He leaped in the air. "Come down out o' that," he snarled as he caught sight of the men in the Mayor's office.

The heads disappeared, and the crowd on the street laughed, and the Tiger kept on waving his fist. "I can whip the worruld.

"Constable, arrest that man," commanded the Mayor.

"I can't do it, Y'r Honor," said Ranney, in deep distress.

Ridings broke out: "Things have come to a narrow lane, if we can't control the streets of our own town. If our constable can't or won't do his duty——"

Ranney, nearly sobbing in his shame and fear, dragged the star off his coat and extended it to the Mayor.

"Take back the office, I don't want it. I didn't go into this thing to arrest grizly bears nor crazy maniacs, for $3 a day. It's all very well for you fellows to sit here and order me to go and arrest the infernal devil; go do it yourselves."

He flung the star on the floor and walked toward the back stairway; "I'm going home."

Foster dryly remarked: "There's a certain degree of justice in what Mr. Ranney says. There are too many commanding officers here and too few active warriors. There's just one man in this country who can arrest Bill O'Shea."

"You mean Jim?"

"Yes, of course."

"Jim's in Cedarville."

"Then telegraph him."

"I telegraphed him an hour ago," said the judge. "I knew we were in for trouble. He ought to be here soon if he started at once."

The Mayor sighed with relief. "Well, there's nothing to do but wait."

They looked out of the window at every fresh burst of noise. The Tiger still paraded up and down, leaping into the air occasionally with a shrill "Wherroo!" He had the weight of a lion and the activity of a leopard. He was transformed from a slouchy, quietly humorous farmer into a demon. Everybody gave way before him; behind him followed a howling mob of admiring friends. Silence came only when he led the way into some saloon.

The better citizens kept dropping in at the Mayor's office to ask why that man was not arrested. The Mayor cooled each one off by saying: "I'll deputize you to arrest him if you wish."

While they sat waiting they heard the sound of hurry out in the street, then a word of command that brought them to a halt.

"Here comes Jim!"

Quick, powerful steps were heard on the stairway, and Jim came in. He was of moderate height, but the girth of his chest was enormous. His face was dark and handsome. His eyes had something placid and sorrowful in them. His drooping mustache concealed his mouth. Altogether he was a fine Irish type.

"Where is he?" he asked.

"In the red saloon, just now."

"Is he wild, boys?" Jim asked in a hesitating way.

They felt no inclination to laugh.

"He is plumb crazy."

Jim gave a groan of sorrow and dismay.

"Murtherin' divils! What a task I have." He took out his clasp knife and laid it down.

"There's a gang with him, too," said Ridings.

"I don't mind that, it's Billy, poor divil." He laid aside his revolver and took off his coat.

"It'll be desprit, boys," he said with a quiver in his voice. "I can't shoot him, yer anner. It's me duty to arrest him, an' I will, but it's loike embracin' a lion to take Billy when he's dhrunk. He'll kill me if he can, if he's crazy, but I can't strike him with a weapon, yer anner."

He looked sad and weak as he went out the door, but they knew the stuff of which his heart was made.

"If he isn't too dhrunk he'll come along when I lay my hand on his shouldher; if he's fightin' dhrunk, it's him or me," he said, half to himself, as he went down the street, accompanied by Foster.

"Wan comfort," he added, in the same musing way, "Billy nivir shoots. It's fists wid him."

They heard a wild shouting up the street, where the open door of a saloon emptied its light into the street.

A crowd of men alternately surged in and out of the door, as if they moved away from a chained wildcat making plunges to the length of its chain. As they drew near, the howl of the drunken man could be heard as he raged against the barkeeper, who stood in deadly terror behind his bar pleading with him. He tried to assume a careless voice.

"Here, take all ye want. That's all right. I gave you y'r change. Take a drink—it's on me. That's all right—" Bill stopped suddenly like a hound scenting game.

"Here's Jim!" was the cry. "Get out of the way, here's Jim!"

Jim came through the crowd, his big, brown eyes fixed on Bill's wild face. The sadness in his face and its resolution awed the crowd.

"Billy, my boy, come home," he said, gently. "Come home, Billy," and he laid his hand on his brother's shoulder.

There was no sign of relenting in Bill's eyes. He looked astonished, then his eyes contracted to red slits, his mouth squared at the corners and his teeth showed in a horrible grin. His hand spread on the counter like a paw.

"Away wid ye!" he answered.

"Get out of my way," said Jim, without looking around. The crowd fell back, leaving him a clear space.

"Come, Billy," he said again, but in a different tone. He saw a madman before him. With a quick, clutching, downward jerk, he rolled the Tiger to the floor and fell upon him. But the insane man rose under him with a rolling, bearlike action, and forced him on the floor on equal terms.

It was a terrific sight. The two brothers, so nearly equal in strength, Jim fighting because it was his duty and hindered by his great love and admiration for his brother, the other man irrational, cruel, deadly. Jim broke loose and rose.

Bill sprang at Jim, whose left fist met him and rolled him on the floor.

"God forgive me! I nivir struck my brother before." Jim said.

He waited for the fallen man to rise. Bill seemed to bound from the ground. Again Jim knocked him rolling, and again he rose. This time he rose with a knife in his hand.

"Ah!" breathed the crowd.

"Shoot him!" said the barkeeper.

"Keep off!" said Jim. A new look came into his eyes. He was fighting for his life now. Again he met the infuriate with his fist, but the man fell at his feet, throwing him sprawling. Jim whirled upon his back, catching Bill's hand in a terrible grip. The blood was running from a gash in his cheek.

Over and over the two men rolled in the blood and sawdust. Notwithstanding their great bulk, they writhed with the bewildering convulsions of cats. Now Jim came to the top, now Bill, but always that right hand of the sheriff's gripped the murderous wrist that held the knife. Jim fought silently, grimly. The brother uttered short, snarling imprecations, like a carnivorous animal at meat. He snapped at his brother with open jaws.

Again and again some volunteer raised a chair to strike Bill, but Jim said "no." His pride was touched. He would conquer him alone. He would not let another man strike his brother.

For ten minutes this struggle continued, and then Jim rose and sat astride the Tiger, who lay breathing heavily, cursing, raving under his breath.

"Handcuff him," cried the crowd.

Jim shook his head. "There is no need," he said.

At the word "handcuff," the struggle began again. Bill wrenched loose suddenly and struck Jim again with the knife. The blow fell upon his collar bone, and the blood poured forth again. Jim caught the deadly arm again in his left hand and lifting his terrible right hand struck a blow upon the side of his brother's head, which laid him out limp and still.

"Out of me way now," he said, as he rose holding the limp body in his hands. They made way for him and he passed out into the street.

A shudder seized on the crowd. Jim was covered with saw dust and filth from the floor. His face was unrecognizable by reason of the blows with fist and knife which had fallen there, and his shirt was dripping with blood also. He walked into the middle of the road with the stunned man held in his hands. The crowd made way for him as if he were a king. He put Bill down and knelt watchfully beside him.

"Call the Mayor," he said, "I'll have a word with him."

A moment later and the Mayor came hurrying down.

"What is it, Jim?"

He lifted a wild, sad face to the Mayor.

"Y'r anner, I ask permission to take Billy home. God knows it would kill him to wake up in the jail, y'r anner. The b'y dawn't know what he's doin' at all. He'll be near dead with shame whin he sees the mark he's put on me. If he wakes in jail, 'twill break the heart of 'im. Y'r anner, you know Billy when the wisky's not in him. He's as fine a man as ever breathed the breath of life. May I take him home, y'r anner?"

The Mayor, deeply moved, nodded his head.

"Do what you think best, Jim."

"God bless ye, yer anner. Will somebody find Billy's team?"

The team was brought and the maniac was lifted into the wagon like a log.

Jim climbed in. "Give me the lines," he said to the man in the seat.

"Can't I go with ye, Jim?"

"Give me, I say."

The man surrendered the lines and leaped out of the wagon.

"Good night, yer anner. Good night boys."

The wagon moved off in the glorious moonlight, with Jim sitting beside the drink-crazed man, who lay on the bed of the wagon unbound, save by the grip of his brother's relentless right hand. He never set foot in Rock River again and the next year Jim was the only candidate for sheriff in the county.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Some Ancient Fat.

Dr. Dall of the Smithsonean Institution, during his recent visit to Alaska, secured a natural history specimen that was a prize, indeed. It was a bit of mammoth fat from the actual adipose tissue of an animal that had been dead for tens of thousands of years.

Bodies of mammoths in a fresh state have been dug up from time to time in Arctic Siberia, preserved in natural cold storage since a period probably antedating the first appearance of man on the earth. That is an old story; but this is the first known instance in which the soft parts of a beast of this species have been found on the American continent. It is easy to imagine the scientific interest attaching to the discovery.

Ages ago this mammoth died, under such circumstances that its corpus was buried in mud. At about that time there was a great and permanent change in the temperature of circum-polar regions. The climate had been sub-tropcal; it suddenly became frigid. The mammoth was literally "frozen out." the last of the species perishing of cold. This particular individual, frozen in a bank of clay, had every prospect of "keeping" for an indefinite period. Hundreds of centuries later a stream flowing through an Alaskan valley tackled the clay bank referred to and began to cut it away. At length some big bones stuck out, and a native of exceptional courage dug out one or two of them. This required more of that quality know in civilized countries as "nerve" than might be imagined, for strange monsters, however long they may have been dead, are regarded with superstitious awe by savages.

However, the natives finally summoned courage enough to drag the remains of the mammoth out of the clay bank piecemeal. The body of the animal had been preserved so well that a fairly perfect cast of it was found in the matrix. A quanity of fat, which overlay the intestines, was obtained and was used for greasing boats. Dr. Dall secured a piece of it and fetched it back to Washington.

In the office of Osteologist Frederick A. Lucas. at the National Museum, is a mammoth's molar tooth, to which an odd story is attached. It was got from a spring at Paso Verde, in the country of the Papago Indians. Ever so many centuries ago a mammoth in its dying agonies sought that spring for water and fell into it, too weak to climb out. There its bones remain to this day, and the Indians believe that, if they were removed, the spring would dry up. Of course, such an event in that region means the destruction of a village.

Mastodon bones, of course, are frequently dug up in the United States. The mastodon was a kind of elephant, but it did not belong to the genus Elephans. The mammoth did not belong to that genus, being known to modern science as Elephans primi-genus. It often happens that farmers plough up the osseous remains of mastodons, particularly in reclaimed swamps, where anciently the gigantic beasts becams mired and died from sheer helplessness to get out. The tusks are commonly found so far decomposed that the ivory crumbles between the fingers.

The first mastodon ever dug up was found in 613. The remains of mastodons are by no means confined to the United States; they are discovered all over the world, in Europe, Asia, and Asia Minor. They are much thicker set than the modern elephant. The lower jaw bone of the full-grown specimen weighs nearly 100 pounds. The first mastodon bones that were dug up were supposed to be those of giants of an earlier epoch.

OURSELVES AND NEIGHBORS.

HAPPENINGS IN FRANKLIN AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

Gleaned From Our Exchanges—The News of the Cumberland Valley and Southern Pennsylvania, With a Few From Beyond Mason & Dixon's.

J. Mitchell Stover, of Edgemont, the well-known fruit grower, has made a deed of trust for the benefit of his creditors. Fred F. McComas was named as trustee.

The Carlisle Manufacturing Company has received an order for one hundred and fifty box cars from the Pennsylvania railroad. It is expected to get the order out by the first of April.

An Indian known as Chief Bushey Joe died at Amber, Mich., a few days ago at the reputed age of 110 years. He was an expert hunter and trapper, and was in the woods after game almost up to the day he died.

A Greencastle man in endeavoring to board train No. 7 on the C. V. R. R. at Greencastle Wednesday evening of last week, fell under the car and very narrowly escaped being crushed by the wheels. He continued his proposed trip to Hagerstown.

A representative of Barney Barnato is in this country for the purpose of investigating the Cripple Creek gold boom. It is possible that Mr. Barnato can teach the Denver experts something about speculating, but he is taking long chances on it.

A speaker at a Boston meeting, the other day, told of a commercial traveller who said he had travelled in one year 6000 miles, had been asked to drink more than that many times, but had not once been asked to go to a church. That showed what kind of company he kept.

George W. Park of Libonia, is one of the heaviest local buyers of paper from the Antietam Paper Company, Hagerstown. He recently made several purchases and in payment of one of them handed over $1500 in postage stamps. Other purchases were paid for in the same way.

Henry Clews figures out that the people of this country have spent not less than $200,000,000 on bicycles during the last four years. He looks for a serious break in the price of wheels, due to increased competition; but as wheels are not carried on margin, Wall street will not be affected in the least.

A large portion of the historic battlefield of Bull Run—about 550 acres—has been sold under a judicial decree at prices ranging from $2.50 to $6 per acre. This indicates that it is not very valuable for agricultural purposes; and certainly it was not worth very much to the Union cause during the war.

John H. Baulsbaugh and his wife, who reside near Swatara, were found dead in their room Christmas from the effects of coal gas from a defective stovepipe. Mr. Baulsbaugh was extensively engaged in farming and was a director of the Hummelstown National bank for many years and a very prominent citizen.

The meeting of the Farmers Association of Franklin county, to be held at the Crowell House, Greencastle, on Saturday, January 4th, will be one of especial interest, and all the members as well as everybody interested in agrlculture should attend. Several subjects touching upon the depressed condition of farming will be discussed.

S. H. Weihenmayer, formerly manager and part owner of the Windsor Knitting Mills purposes having a new stocking factory in operation in Hagerstown by February 1. He has purchased the machinery for the factory in Philadelphia. The output will be large and many hands will be employed. The site for the factory has not yet been selected.

Dr. Parkhurst has no use for people who are only half bad. He said in a recent lecture: "Unmixed depravity I like. There is something sure about it. That's why I like Dick Croker and Paddy Divver in my city. There's no Hyde-Jekyll about them. It is the man who is 50 per cent. an angel of light that makes the situation complicated."

John Hoffman, a 4-year-old son of Jacob Hoffman, who resides at Bowman's Mills, one mile east of Leitersburg, on the Smithsburg road, was accidentally drowned in the race which leads to the mill. Dr. C. W. Harper was summoned, who rendered all possible aid, but to no avail. A cut is visible near the temple. Funeral on Friday morning at Westminster.

Since the Auburn Wagon Company has concluded to vacate the old Crowell works, would it not be a good thing, asks the Greencastle Press, for a dozen of working men to raise a couple thousand dollars and resurrect the Greencastle Grain Drill works? The people to organize this new enterprise should be made up of men who can work on the driil. If you depend upon capitalists of Antrim to invest no enterprise will ever be started.

To enhance their beauty by enlarging the pupils of their eyes to increase their brilliancy, several young women at the Union Knitting Mills, in Frederick, recently bathed them freely with belladonna. The drug, instead of producing bewitching black eyes. impaired their sight to such an extent as to cause them to take several days rest under the care of their physicians.

There is one Smith family in Ohio that will never be confounded with the other Smiths if its members are known by their first names. The father is the Rev. Jeremiah Prophet Elijah Smith. His sons are named Most Noble Festus and Sir Walter Scott Bart, and his daughters, Juan Fernandez Island and Terre del Fuego. Must be a streak of romance or insanity or something in that family.

It is generally agreed among naturalists that the tortoise is the longest lived of all animals. There are many instances of them attaining the extraordinary age of 250 years, while one is actually mentioned as reaching the unparalleled age of 405 years. Notwithstanding these examples, which, of course, are exceptionally rare, the ordinary tortoise only lives, on an average, from 100 to 150 years.

George Kennan, the well-known writer and lecturer, speaking of the Venezuelan dispute, says: "I am surprised at the readiness of the American people to bring on a first class war. I regret the condition because I greatly fear that a terrible war is imminent. England will not back down from her position. This can be taken for a certainty. If President Cleveland's interpretation of the Monroe doctrine continues to be upheld we shall have war, and the greatest war that ever transpired."

The United States has spent $75,000 all told at Antietam. The new road, 100 feet wide, between the National and insurgent lines cost, in cluding the land, only $1,200 per mile, nine inches of lime stone in the middle, quarried on the spot. But the main expense was upon the public street of Sharpsburg, one and a-half miles long, from the cemetery to the railroad depot; it cost over $25,000 per mile, with its sidewalks, New York curbing, drains, retaining walls, etc.

Harry, a nine-year-old son of Paul Hessler of Clark's Valley, some miles west of Pinegrove, Schuylkill county, met with a startling adventure while roaming through the woods with his father. He was some distance away from his father when he was attacked by a catamount. The boy stumbled and fell, when the animal pounced on him. He screamed and his father came to his rescue. The father succeeded in driving the animal away, but the boy was rendered unconscious.

For the taking of the life of his young cousin, Ernest Allen, Coudersport, Pa., will suffer but little penalty. At Elmer three weeks ago, just before departing on a hunting expedition, Allen raised his gun, in response to a playful remark made by Mrs. Emma Allen, whose guest he was, and shot her in the ueck and she dropped dead. A day or two ago he pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter and Judge Olmstead sentenced him to one year in the county jail and to pay a fine of $500.

The Waynesboro Record says: Daniel Smith, Jun., of Rouzerville, employed in the Geiser works remained at the Washington House Tuesday night and on retiring, blew out the gas instead of turning it off. When he was called at an early hour Christmas morning he could not be awakened and on bursting the door in he was found unconscious. A physician was called who worked with him for several hours before he became himself again. The gas was not turned on full and this was all that saved his life.

The Postoffice Department has decided a point that will affect unfavorably a large number of persons and a considerable portion of the American press. It has announced that all schemes that offer to the public money by prizes, to such as will forward to the newspapers the earliest solution of puzzles, or similar schemes, into which the element of chance enters, are nothing more or less than lotteries, and everything relating to them is unmailable. This is a little rough on some of those newspapers that make this prize business the main feature of their columns.

The value of the corn lost in a single valley—that of the Osage River in Missouri—during the recent flood is estimated at $2,000,000. The amount of the loss is partly accounted for by the phenomenal yield of corn this year and partly by the fact that the rainfall in that section was equally phenomenal; but this is only one of many instances which go to show that one of this country's great economic problems in the immediate future will be the control of its rivers and the prevention of floods which must grow more disastrous as the country becomes more populous and more closely tilled.

Clifford E. Crane, Brooklyn, died at the residence of Mrs. James Kelso in Shippensburg, Saturday, December 21, after four days' illness. He was a traveling salesman and was accompanied by his wife and son. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias and ot the Royal Arcanum. After funeral services Sunday evening the body was taken to Geneva, N. Y., for burial. Mr. Crane was 46 years old and had been traveling for one firm 20 years. Several years ago he had a sun stroke from which he never recovered and his death was the final result of this affliction.

The region about Uniontown, still continues to disgrace the rest of the State, and Tuesday night four new crimes were added to the list. A colored man named France was fatally shot at a dance at Bridgeport by a stranger, who quarreled with him about a young woman. At Vanderbilt Coke Works the miners were celebrating Christmas, when Steven Sinclo was fatally shot. Alfred Johnson, colored, was shot in the head during a fight at Connellsville, and will probable die. During a fight at Scottdale, Ted Collins was fatally stabbed and several others were badly injured. It is not known who stabbed Collins. Several arrests have been made.

A clever swindle is being worked in nearby towns with successful results by a fakir. Equipped with two watches, the one having a faint, the other a loud tick and many bottles of liniment, he goes to work curing people. The particular individual works in a carriage. By offering to cure one or more free he gets his victim up in the buggy, applies the watch having the weak tick to the ear, returns the watch to his pocket, applies some of the "lightning liniment," does considerable talking and rubbing and winds up by applying the other watch, this time the loud one to the ear. After this cure he makes probably a dozen sales and then excites further interest by making another cure.

For the past four or five weeks the Mint Bureau has been flooded with orders for small coin and especially pennies. So great has been the demand that nine presses and extra forces of men have been steadily employed at the Philadelphia Mint coining nothing but cents. The average output has been about 400,000 a day, but even at this rate it has been hard work to fill all the orders. One New York firm has taken no less than 2,500,000 pennies since the holiday trade began, ordering on one occasion a million of them. This is probably the largest order for pennies that has ever been received at one time. A Chicago firm has been ordering pennies at the rate of $2,000 and $3,000 worth at a time and several times a week.

A good story is told of Rudyard Kipling and the way in which he gained his marvellously accurate knowledge of the slang of the London slums. One day while working in his rooms in Villiers street, Strand, London, he rang the bell and requested the man who answered it to sit down and tell him all the "back-slang" he knew. The man had but recently come up from Oxford, and professed himself at a loss to supply the information, but knew a "chap" who could. The "chap" was called into requisition, and, wondering, was told to go ahead. The "back-slang" was heard in profusion, and 5s. was the reward. Readers have often marvelled that Mr. Kipling's knowledge of London slums and their language was as accurate as that of the jungle and Anglo-Indian life. The foregoing explains it.

After all, the Florida freeze of last year has made oranges scarce, and there were few fine ones to be had for Christmas decoration. The freeze of last year, besides killing the fruit on the trees, injured the trees themselves to such an extent that the shortest way out of the difficulty seemed to the planters in nearly every case to be to cut the trees down to the ground, and let them sprout afresh. This has been done all through Florida, for the freeze extended through the whole orange-producing section, and it was only in a few places, where the peculiar local conditions favored them, that the trees escaped. One-year-old sprouts cannot, of course, be expected to bear fruit, so that the oranges sent come only from the trees which were not bitten, or were not bitten badly enough to make it necessary to cut them down.

THE VENEZUELA CASE.

In answer to the inquiry of a correspondent the New York Sun thus defines the Monroe doctrine and explains the Venezuela case:

"The gist of the Monroe doctrine is in this sentence: 'Any attempt by the European powers to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere is dangerous to our peace and safety.'

"There is no final knowledge on the part of any officer of the United States that this principle has been violated by England in connection with Venezuela. All that we know is that territory which for years has been in dispute between Venezuela and England, and about which very many acts of England forbid the notion that she believes her title to be unquestionable, is now demanded by England outright, chiefly because some of her subjects have gone and settled on the land. The United States has proposed to England to submit her dispute with Venezuela to arbitration. England says 'No!' and that she alone will settle it, or virtually settle it by force. The United States is compelled, therefore, in defence of itself as it may be affected by European incursions in South America, to find out whether the land claimed by England is hers by right of treaty which it has not been the intention of the United States to disturb, or whether her title is of her own making since the Monroe doctrine was promulgated.

"The duty of the United States to investigate this question under the circumstances is beyond question. The Commission to be named by the President will make the desired investigation.

"If it is found that England's present claim is right, the Monroe doctrine or American doctrine has not been infringed. If it turns out that England has not the proper title to this land, an attempt on her part to hold it would be a direct and vital infringement of the Monroe doctrine, and it would be the duty of the United States to resist such effort with its full power.

"Suppose it turns out that England has been right, and that the war flurry has been for nothing. None the less we are convinced that the overwhelming demonstration, called out by the Venezuela message, of patriotic determination to uphold the interests of the United States and the integrity of the Western hemisphere against European agression, will prove to be of incalculable value.

"It is well for all the world to know clearly the true relations of the United States of North America to the sister republics of South America."

THE BORDER CLAIMS.

Attorney Ben M. Nead of Harrisburg, who is a native of Chambersburg, is specially gratified over the appointment of Hon. Thad. M. Mahon as chairman of the committee on War Claims. Mr. Nead has had more than a professional interest in the claims that were presented by the people of Chambersburg, and in the appointment of Mr. Mahon his hopes are renewed and he now sees some prospect that the claims may be adjusted and paid before the claimants are all dead. Mr. Mahon will endeavor to get the claims before the court of claims where they will be finally adjudicated. Mr. Nead's hope, as reported, that the matter will be determined at the present session is considered by many people to be rather optimistic. This class of claims from this section approximates $3,000,000 while all the claims of this kind from every section of the country is put at $400,000,000.

As Chambersburg is the only town north of Mason and Dixon's line that was practically destroyed during the war the claims of its people should have precedence, but whether they will or not remains to be seen. One thing is certain, no other member of the house can present these claims in a more truthful or favorable light than Mr. Mahon.

LIKE MANY other people, times and events, Lord Dunraven has come, has seen and has gone again. The inquiry which resulted from his petulant charges of improper conduct on the part of the Americans in the yacht race in which his vessel, the Valkyrie, was defeated, has been had and is over. There was nothing to indicate any ground for complaint and he has admitted as much. For a fullgrown, live lord, his actions and the disposition he showed looked surprisingly small. His complaints were without reason, and his implied charges without foundation. Even British Earls are sometimes found to be very ordinary mortals and not above whimpering.

THE EXPOSITION IS CLOSED.

The Atlanta Exposition closed Tuesday without any special ceremony. The only drawback the Exposition suffered was the comparison with the Columbia Exposition in Chicago, in 1893, and this was entirely unfair to the people of the South. There is no question that the late Expositon will have a beneficial effect in stimulating the south to greater exertion in industrial affairs and will beget a respect for the possibilities of the great south land, among people from northern sections whose only knowledge of the south was gathered from the causes and history of the late war. They may now learn that a new era has dawned upon the south and with its possibilities of soil and climate and consequent products, its water ways for transportation, and the native, ready products of its forests and mines, give promise of a time in the not remote future—after sectionalism shall have died away—when the southern states shall have a standing in the industrial and commercial ranks of our country, that they have never heretofore known. The Exposition has brought about a proper appreciation of the value of the South Atlantic and Gulf States.

LIGHT ON THE VENEZUELA BOUNDARY.

In the last few days the State Department at Washington, has made a discovery of considerable importance in the Venezuelan boundary dispute which throws new documentary light on the British contention of ownership west of the Schomburgk line and Lord Salisbury's refusal to agree to arbitration east of that line. In the opinion of those officials who are engaged in studying the various phases of the controversy, this official document demonstates that England had no idea of claiming a large part of Venezuela until Schomburgk's scientific exploration had disclosed the great wealth of the region, and that she then determined to make exorbitant claims, trusting that part of them, at least, would stick.

It is not putting it too strong to say that England's Premier has acted insolently toward our government in this Venezuelan matter and that he must withdraw his last "ultimatum" or there is likely to be trouble between this country and England. Nobody here wants war but nobody will stand insolence and imposition.

THE NATION'S CASH AND CREDIT.

A dispatch from New York states that a syndicate is ready to take the bonds which, it is thought, the Treasury Deyartment will issue shortly. The subscriptions for the new loan, it is said, foot up anywhere from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. The United States Treasury gold reserve at the close of business Tuesday, with all withdrawals out, stood at $62,661,148. The amount of gold withdrawn at New York was $500,000 for export to South America.

A Washington dispatch says that the official Treasury statement to be issued today, January 1, will show approximately that the receipts for the last six months were $167,500,000 and expenditures $182,800,000, making the deficit $15,000,000.

United States Treasurer Morgan Tuesday forwarded 28,786 checks aggregating $6,749,733, in payment of interest due yesterday on United States four per cent. consuls of 1907 and bonds issued in aid of the Pacific Railroads.

ENGLAND HAS a Poet Laureate to succeed Tennyson. Queen Victoria has appointed Alfred Austin to the vacancy caused by the death of Lord Alfred Tennyson who died in October, 1892. Mr. Austin is not yet widely known by his writings and it is thought that he can hardly take the place of the late Laureate who was known and loved wherever his verses were read.

A DISPATCH from Washington says that a prominent Senator from one of the Middle States will offer an amendment to the House Tariff bill, when taken up in the Senate, to strike out all after the enacting clause and re-enact the McKinley law entire, with the exception of the sugar schedule. There is also a modification that the rates levied shall be 75 per cent. of the duties named in the McKinley act. Such an amendment would take from the free list to the dutiable list everything transferred by the Wilson bill, change all duties from ad valorem to specific, and would have the effect of re-enacting the reciprocity section of the old law.

Three young children of William Atkins and his wife, of Akron, Ohio, were burned to death by a fire which destroyed their home on Sunday night. Their parents were absent at church.

A mother's supposed premonition of her son's death resulted in a somewhat uncanny affair in Williamsport, Pa., on Sunday. I. E. Yorks, a young man, was brought to the hospital in that city about three weeks ago from Oak Grove. His case was hopeless. Saturday night there arrived over the Fall Brook Railroad an empty casket consigned to the hospital for Yorks' body. He was not yet dead. It was learned that his aged mother on Saturday had had what she supposed was a premonition of her boy's death, and proceeded post haste to get a coffin in which to bring his body home. She was not much out of the way, however, for Yorks died Sunday afternoon and his remains were Monday shipped home in the prematurely-purchased casket.

TWENTY-THREE TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Disastrous and Fatal Panic in a Baltimore Theatre.

Twenty-three persons were crushed or trampled to death in a panic at Front Street Theatre, in Baltimore, Friday night, and several others were injured, some of them fatally. The panic was started by a cry of "fire" in the audience, caused by a leak in a gas pipe. There was a wild scramble for the doors, the men in the rear of the crowd climbing over the heads of those in front in their struggle to get out.

The United Oriental Opera and Dramatic Company of Boston, was billed to present the Jewish opera "Alexander." About twenty-five hundred persons were in the house.

A strong odor of gas was noticed in the second gallery and one of the attaches was seen hunting for the leak with a lighted torch. Suddenly a jet of flame flashed out as the torch came in contact with the punctured gas pipe.

Cries of "Fire!" were heard in the upper galleries, and in an instant the excitement became intense. Some one rushed to the gas meter and turned off the supply, plunging the main body of the house into darkness. The stage jets alone remained lighted, being fed through another meter.

The turning off of the gas and consequent darkness only served to add to the confusion. The audience made a mad rush for the exits. The actors ran to the footlights and shouted, "sit down, there's no danger," but the excited throng continued their wild scramble for the door.

The gas was quickly turned on and, as the theatre again became illuminated, an indescribable scene of horror was presented. Men, women and children, crazed by fear, were fighting and struggling in the aisles and on the stairways in their efforts to reach the open air. The actors and a few cool heads in the audience added to the turmoil by shouting their commands to "sit down" and cursing those who were most vigorous in their efforts to get out. Every aisle was congested and every doorway jammed with the frantic Poles and Russian Jews who mainly composed the gathering. Strong men in the rear of the panic-stricken mob climbed upon the shoulders of those in front, crushing the weaker men, women and little children to the floor, to be trampled to death by those still farther in the rear.

For several minutes the wild fight continued. Then a few policeman forced a passageway to the main entrance and began dragging forth those who were jammed in the doors. A rushing stream of humanity flowed out until all those who were able to move reached the open air.

The excitement in the street was great as relatives began searching for those from whom they had become separated during the mad rush. Fathers and mothers rushed about looking for their children, and attempted to re-enter the theatre in their search for missing ones. The police fearing a riot, ordered the fire engine hose to be turned on, and in that way the struggling mass was driven back from the theatre entrance. Meanwhile officers had entered and encountered a sickening sight. In every direction were found bodies from which life had been crushed and trampled.

A majority of the victims were young men, girls and children. They were tenderly carried to the front of the house and taken to the City Hospital and the Morgue as fast as the ambulances and patrol wagons could make the trips. Twenty-three dead bodies were finally taken from the theatre. The death list will probably exceed 25.

Another Soldiers' Society.

We have received from Rev. B. G. Huber a copy of the Rules and Regulations of the "General Society of the Soldiers' Open Enrollment Association" which was organized at Hudson, Indiana, May 26, 1893. Rev. H. J. Becker, of Dayton, Ohio, is president; Rev. B. G. Huber, of Chambersburg, secretary and treasurer and Rev. W. H. Davis, of Hartsville, Indiana, member of the committee on organization. Survivors of the late war who are of good moral character and believe in the principles and teachings of christianity are eligible to membership. It is in no sense a secret organization. The object of the association is briefly stated to be "the elevation of good citizenship and society, and also to afford opportunity to its members to interchange thought and more practically unite their services to ameliorate the unfortunate condition of many Comrades whose sad lot both physically and morally calls for sympathy and assistance. Also to give expression to all patriotic questions which touch the weal or the woe of our common country and countrymen."

GENERAL NEWS NOTES

Clipped and Condensed From Our Exchanges.

Willie Black, aged 14, Sam Toole, 16, and Addie Clayborn, 14, were drowned at Creston, Ohio, Tuesday, while skating, the ice breaking under them.

Rev. Dr. Wilbur Chapman has accepted the call to the Bethany Presbyterian church in Philadelphia at a salary of $8000, with five months vacation, three of which he will devote to evangelistic work.

Tony Golf, aged 13, a negro of Buck Grove, Kentucky, on Monday night shot and killed his father as he lay asleep in his bed. The boy had been whipped the previous day for stealing a penknife and his crime was in revenge.

Harry Irwin, employed by the Cresson and Clearfield Coal and Coke Company at its sawmill at Frugality, was instantly killed Thursday afternoon at Lloydsville, while attempting to board a freight train. The unfortunate man was about 30 years of age, and leaves a wife and two children.

Jim Lynch a negro farm hand, residing twenty miles east of Meridian, Mississippi, was "taken to the woods by about twenty-five determined white men on Monday night, and after being whipped with a cowhide until the blood was streaming from his body, was shot to death. Lynch had been making some very ugly remarks about ladies. Andrew Brown, a negro, who was under arrest at Westville, Mississippi, for stealing cattle, was lynched by a mob on Monday.

Despatches from the far west indicate that a big snow storm has seriously interfered with traffic. The storm began Friday, and so completely blockaded the switchback on the Great Northern on the West Slope on the Cascade Range that the schedule was sadly interrupted. The storm in Washington appears to have been especially severe, and for a distance of nearly ten miles, between Madison and Wellington, the slide of snow and earth made it impossible for the overland trains to get through.

TOWN AND TOWNSHIP.

The Events of the County as Chronicled by "Review" Correspondents—Summary of the Week's News.

METAL.

The M. E. Sunday school christmas exercises in charge of G. W. Park, superintendent, were enjoyed by all. The exercises were carried out in full and some added to by Misses Vernal Park and Mary Wise and Roy Witherow. The infant department work was a success. The music was well rendered by the choir; Miss Sallie Kuhn presided at the organ and deserves great praise for her excellent work. G. W. Park received a seal skin collar from the school as a token of their esteem for him. Rev. H. K. Ash received a pair of kid gloves and E. J. McIlhenny received a silk muffler from his class of ladies. The treat was good and the large lot of presents given by the superintendent, G. W. Park, were fine and were appreciated by all. Every person went home well pleased with the entertainment and asking that the blessings of God may rest upon and abide with the school for the present year as in the past.

The Presbyterian and Brethren Christmas exercises were very good; the program was carried out as far as possible. The night being bad a great many were not able to be present. Miss Daisy Wilson, organist of the Presbyterian school, received a very nice church hymnal for her efficient work.

Our teachers, Miss Sallie Kuhn, Chambersburg and Miss Rosenberry, Richmond, are spending this week at their homes.

W. F. Noonan and son and daughter Emma and Charles, of Williamson, spent Christmas in our midst shaking hands and exchanging greetings with old friends. Come again Frank, always glad to see you.

Mrs. A. C. and Miss D. G. Wilson, and Mrs. McGee, are among the sick who were not able to attend services Sunday; we hope to see them out soon.

CONCORD,

A good combination—soft-head—hard-cider.

Frank Boggs and wife, Mt. Jewett, are visiting relatives in town.

William C. Donnelly was home from Shippensburg Normal last week.

Samuel Widney, Tyrone, is visiting relatives in Path Valley.

Henry Miller and wife spent Christmas at Richmond.

Dr. Boggs, Fannettsburg, was in town Saturday.

James Piper is on the sick list.

James M. Donnelly, a fifer boy from '61 to '65, has joined the band and is adding greatly to the music by the masterly way he executes his part on the piccolo.

Since the rain of last week the Tuscarora creek is overflowing the mill dam for the first time since June.

Are you keeping your New Year's resolutions?

The modern Santa Claus appeared in A. B. Little's show window last week on a bicycle.

Some of the citizens of town became alarmed at the scarcity of water in the wells, so some of the enterprising citicens are digging a well on the Diamond for the use of the public.

The good Lord gave an apple crop to the just and to the unjust, but he didn't intend it to be used in a form commonly called hard-cider; neither did he intend it to be handed out by the so called just to boys to rob them of their senses. Shame on such men, if you can call them men.

A black bear was seen in the Concord Narrows last week.

The Fannett township local institute will be held in the Dry Run Hall, January 24 and 25, 1896.

Dr. Joseph F. Barton of the Cumberland Valley Normal School, will lecture Friday evening. Let everybody attend and make it a success.

The fair and festival held by the band was a success in every respect. The band gave a delightful concert each evening.

The teachers were paid their third month's salary Saturday.

LURGAN.

Holiday Weddings—On Wednesday, December 25, at 12 o'clock, noon, Mr. Isaac Cover and Miss Carrie Mowrey, were married at the home of the bride's parents in Lurgan township, by Rev. A. N. Horn of Newburg. After dinner was served the happy couple left for Palmyra to visit the groom's brother, J. Dixon Cover, and wife. On Saturday morning they returned to the home of the groom's parents in Lurgan, where many friends had assembled to greet the newly married couple and wish them many happy years together. A bountiful dinner was served and the day was very pleasantly spent. The calithumpian band furnished the music in the evening.

On Tuesday evening, December 24, Miss Annie Hoover and Mr. Martin Reese, were married at the home of the bride's mother, near Otterbein church, Lurgan township.

On Wednesday evening, December 25, Mr. John W. Mowrey of near Newburg, and Miss Carrie M. Sclichter, daughter of John Sclichter of Mouersville, were married at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. A. N. Horn of Newburg. The bride received quite a number of pretty and useful presents.

To all these married couples we extend our hearty congratulations.

Mr. Simon Reed of near Roxbury, had his collar bone broken on Thursday evening of last week. He was ungearing a horse at the stable door when the horse started into the stable, forcing him against the frame of the door. The bone was set by Dr. O. P. Stoey of Roxbury.

The calithumpian band of Lurgan had a busy time of it last week. How the boys did "stand the storm" last Thursday evening when the rain was pouring down, but all in vain.

QUINCY.

Thursday at noon, at the residence of and by the Rev. D. B. Mentzer, Waynesboro, Miss Mary Catherine, youngest daughter of Isaac Utz, Washington township, was married to William Rock, Fox Hill. After the ceremony they went to the home of the bride's father, Issaac Utz, where a bountiful dinner was prepared. Only a few of the close relatives of the bride and groom had been invited. The bride is a young lady who has spent all her young life in Quincy township, with the exception of a few years in Maryland. She is a fine young christian, hard working, industrious lady, very prominent in society and many were the the glowing tributes of respect and love paid to her by a host of friends. The groom is also well-known throughout the township, having been born and raised near Fox Hill, and is a prosperous, industrious young man, having a large number of young and old friends with whom your correspondent joins in wishing a long, pleasant and happy life.

Christmas evening the members of the Seven Day Baptist church at the Nunnery elected these members to serve as deacons: Benjamin Funk and B. V. Monn. They are both good selections.

Mrs. Katie Fetterhoff and daughter May, Nevada county, Iowa, are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. A. S. Monn and other relatives near Quincy.—W. L. Thompson, Duffield, was visiting friends at Fox Hill last week.—John D. Ickes and family, Southampton township, spent their Christmas with the former's father-in-law. Rev. John Walk, near Mount Zion, and his brother-in-law, Postmaster George C. Walk, Quincy.

William H. Singer, Quincy, is at present engaged in putting up a new wagon shed, 12x20 feet. Jacob Smetzer is the contractor for the carpenter work.—J. A. Snyder, near Altenwald, has had new spouting put on his large dwelling house which he had lately remodeled.—Mrs. Mary Martin, at Quincy, has had new spouting put on her brick dwelling house. J. C. Heefner, that young and expert mechanic from Altodale, furnished and put up the spouting of both houses.

Many of our farmers who had not finished their plowing this fall are now busy plowing and say that the ground is in splendid condition. This is something unusual at this season of the year.

Amos Martin, one of our supervisors, is lying ill at his home in New Baltimore with the grippe. Mr. Martin has not fully recovered from a very severe attack of pneumonia which he had last winter.

The Christmas entertainment in the Mont Alto U. B. church Christmas eve was largely attended. The church was decorated with pine, evergreen and mottos. James D. Monn was chorister and Miss Clara Funk organist. The service was opened by an anthem from "Christmas Crowns," the service used. This was followed by recitations and dialogues by the smaller scholars and right well did they acquit themselves. The musical numbers consisted of "The Glorious Star," "Hail, Love, Redeemer of Men," a solo and chorus, the solo being rendered by James D. Monn which greatly pleased the vast audience; "Glory to God in the highest," a song by the school, "The wondrous story," song by the primary department; "A song of glory," song for ladies' chorus, male chorus and school, the ladies' chorus being rendered by Misses Emma Monn, Mattie Monn, Laura Small, and Aggie Small; the male chorus by J. D. Monn, George Moser, D. M. Brown and W. H. Heefner; this was one of the best numbers on the program and was well rendered; "Hosanna to our King," processional song by primary department. Rev. J. W. Kiracofe, the pastor, was present and made an address. Much credit is due James D. Monn, George Monn, Mrs. J. D. Monn, Mrs. George Moser and the young ladies of the church for their indefatigable work. The school met Christmas morning at half-past nine o'clock to receive its treat.

George W. Keagey, Sen., at the Nunnery, Friday slaughtered two more large hogs, weighing, dressed, 396 and 361 pounds. This makes four of the largest hogs slaughtered by one person in Quincy township this season. Mr. Keagey is congratulated on all sides for his big butcherings. D. G. Freidly was head butcher.

Mrs. Susan, wife of Peter Witmore, Quincy, has been confined to bed the past week or longer with a bad cold and erysipelas. We are very glad to say that she is slowly recovering.

A shooting match for turkeys was held by D. I. Robinson on the Stoops' range at Blue Rock Saturday last. The scores as made for a prize of a Winchester rifle, three shots to a score, were: W.G. Stoops, 34, 34, 33, 34, 35; J. Manon, 32, 34, 32, 31, 33, 32; C. Clarke, 28, 29, 29, 30, 31; Edgar Burns, 30, 32, 33, 32; James Rock, 33, 30, 29; Isaiah Kauffman, 31, 27, 31; Calvin Miller, 33, 31, 29. Turkeys were won as follows: W. G. Stoops, 3; E. Burns, 2; D. I. Robinson, 2; Isaiah Kauffman, 1; James Rock, 1.

B. V. Monn, the efficient school teacher of the Altodale graded school, received fourteen valuable presents from his scholars Christmas, showing that he is highly esteemed by them.

Saturday evening a series of meetings was commenced at Mt. Zion church by the German Baptist brethren. Sunday evening the church was crowded to hear Rev. J. T. Culp preach. He is a very eloquent minister and easily holds the attention of large audiences. Services will be held every evening of this week, and probably longer, at 7 o'clock.

D. W. T.

MERCERSBURG.

A party living below Greencastle came to Mercersburg on Tuesday of last week with a pretense of selling wheat. Procuring empty sacks and with a plausible story he succeeded in getting a check of $18.50 on wheat which he would deliver in a day or two. He tried the same game at the Mercersburg mill but was unsuccessful. The party gave his name as Grove, living in the vicinity of Welsh Run. On leaving town the sacks were left lying on the pavement, which created suspicion, and on inquiry, Whitmer & Co. were convinced that they had been deceived. With the constable they started in pursuit, but did not find their deceiver. Next morning they again started and found the man at his home and took him before the justice in Greencastle where the matter was adjusted by the pretender paying face of check which he had parted with and costs, which amounted to $31.

The Reformed, Lutheran and Presbyterian churches observed Christmas on Tuesday, Christmas eve; the M. E. church on Christmas evening. All were well attended and the entertainments were if possible, better than ever before. The United Brethren had their entertainment on New Year eve.

The public schools of Mercersburg are enjoying a week's vacation and will open again on the 2nd of January. Miss Bessie Fallon, owing to ill health, has resigned her school. We feel sorry for Miss Bessie and for her school also as she was doing efficient work.

A series of meetings is being held by Rev. R. W. Runyan at Charlestown. The meetings are interesting and well attended, especially by the young folks.

Mr. James Agnew has the honor of killing the largest hogs in this section, 412 and 414 pounds.

KAUFFMAN.

Christmas passed off very quietly around Kauffman. We had a game of ball in which the young folks enjoyed themselves very much. Some were so stiff they could hardly get around for two or three days.

Mr. H. Miller has erected a very substantial wagonmaker shop at this station. Mr. David Cump was contractor and builder.

Some of the farmers around Kauffman are still turning up the soil for corn.

LEGAL NOTICES.

PROCLAMATION.—To the Coroner, Justices of the Peace, and Constables of the county of Franklin:—Whereas the Honorable John Stewart, President Judge of the 39th Judicial District, composed of the county of Franklin, has issued his precept for holding a Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery and a Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, at Chambersburg, for the county of Franklin, to begin the first Monday of February, 1896, being the third day of the month, to continue two weeks: You and each of you are then and there to appear in your proper persons, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, with your records, inquisitions, recognizances, examinations, and other remembrances, to do those things which to your several offices appertain to be done.

Given under my hand at Chambersburg the 30th day of December, A. D., 1895.

R. G. JONES,
High Sheriff.

ADMINITRATOR'S NOTICE.—Notice is hereby given that letters of administration upon the estate of Daniel Painter, late of the Borough of Chambersburg, Franklin county, Pa., have been granted to the undersigned. All persons indebted to said estate will please make payment, and all having claims will present them properly authenticated for settlement.

WILLIAM BERGER,
Administrator.

MASTER'S NOTICE:—

Court of Common Pleas of Franklin County, Penn'a.

Libel in Divorce { LIZZIE PATTERSON vs. THOMAS H. PATTERSON.

To Thomas H. Patterson, Respondent, now living in Dayton, Ohio.

Having been appointed Master by the above named Court to take testimony, find facts and report the same with an opinion, I will sit for the purpose of my appointment at my office in Chambersburg, Pa., on Monday, January 6th, 1896, at 10 o'clock, A. M., to here all persons interested, when and where you may appear if you see proper. The cause for which said divorce is asked is wilful and malicious desertion.

WALTER F. HOLLER,
Master.

MONEY SAVERS

It's all nonsense paying two or three prices for Christmas goods or anything else for that matter just because it is Christmas.

The fact that you are generous is no reason why we should be less so.

We sell Christmas goods at the same profits you pay for any other kind any other time.

You will find our prices are money savers these days and our store a money saving institution when everybody is on the make.

We don't work for your confidence eleven months in the year and trick you now. We don't do business that way.

This winter's Heating Stoves are especially good. The Art Perpect, Brilliant Sunshine and Perfect Gem Heaters heat the bedrooms above equally as well as the lower rooms.

The new Gold Coin Stoves have had a wonderful sale. Beautiful stoves and excellent workers—no wonder people are delighted.

A Wood Stove named the "Wonder" is a surprise. Not a door on the stove. Fire built from the top and yet no smoke. A chunk lasts all day and heats a room. It is certainly a marvel. Price $8.50.

Many other Wood Stoves that are made to heat. Dozens of Coal Stoves—handsome and plain. Large lot of second-hand stoves of all kinds, cheap.

Lard Cans—plenty of cheap ones—and our make, the very best. They will neither leak nor melt off the bottoms. We will pay for any loss. Come, try them. Prices are right.

A WORD IN PASSING.

Town and County Briefs With a Bit of Comment—Happenings of the Week and a Forecast of Coming Events.

Hagerstown dealers have reduced the price of anthracite coal 25 cents a ton.

The installation of officers of Housum Post, G. A. R., will take place on Tuesday evening next.

On Saturday, January 4, Utah will be formally admitted as a state by proclamation of the President.

J. Grant Guyer, whose injuries kept him confined to the house, is able to be about again, though not entirely well yet.

Some one fired a shot through a car window of the Sunday night Norfolk & Western train. Conductor Harris barely escaped the bullet.

Chairman Seiders has called the Republican county committee to meet on Monday next to fix the time for the county convention.

The house and lot of the late Daniel Painter, West King street, was sold on Saturday by W. M. Berger, administrator, to George W. Burkhart, for $555.

The hardware and tin store of Walter Brothers, Shippensburg, was burglarized and robbed on Sunday night. No estimate of the loss has been made public.

The two morning dailies of Hagerstown, the Torchlight & Herald, and the News have been merged into one, which now appears as "The Morning Herald."

Miss Mary Mengal, in Greenawalt's drug store, has received from the New York Examiner, a prize of $30 for the best photograph by amateurs received during a part of last year.

George W. Jackson, the Bellefonte banker and first graduate of Girard College, has contributed $100 to the proposed $10,000 fund for the erection of a statue of Girard in Philadelphia.

The week of prayer services with topics as selected by the Evangelical Alliance, will begin on Sunday next, January 5, continue during the week and conclude on the following Sunday.

A tall flag pole has been erected upon the cupola of the court house by Mr. Wingert, who has repainted the cupola. Ben Franklin has quite a vigorous appearance again, in his suit of white.

The will of the late Charles S. Shields of Doylesburg, concerning which there had been hearings before Register Ledy, has been admitted to probate. Mrs. Melissa Shields, the widow, is the executrix.

In the absence of the family on Thursday evening some one broke into the dwelling of Alex. Kline on Third street and took a gold watch. A number of other articles were misplaced but nothing else was taken.

Roy, aged about 10 years, son of Wm. Marlin, of Huntingdon, attempted to jump off a fast moving freight train near the car works Thursday afternoon, and fell under the wheels. His left leg was crushed at the ankle, and the limb was amputated by Drs. Brumbaugh and Banks.

During the storm on Thursday afternoon a tree was blown across the track of the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad near Hopewell. A construction train run into the tree. One of the trainmen jumped from a car and was instantly killed. He was 40 years old and leaves a family.

Fairview school near Metal, in Path Valley, held an entertainment on Saturday evening, which was quite a success. It consisted of literary exercises, music, etc. The proceeds will be applied toward purchasing a library for the school. W. G. Irvin is the teacher and is succeeding admirably in his work.

The new Cumberland Valley station and waiting room in Chambersburg have been opened to the public. There are more convenient for the employees than formerly and there is more comfort for the waiting passengers. The entire building is a model of neatness and convenience and our people are justly proud of it.

Among the indictments found by the grand Jury in Philadelphia, Monday, was one against William A. Shoemaker, one of the attorneys for Holmes, the convicted murderer. The bill charges Shoemaker with attempted subornation of perjury in connection with the unsuccessful effort to secure a new trial for Holmes.

Mrs. Matthew Thompson fell down stairs at her home in Mechanicsburg, Sunday morning and broke her neck. She tripped on the carpet and fell almost from the top of the stairway to the bottom where she was shortly afterwards found by a young lady who was with her. Mrs. Thompson was about 67 years old.

Hicks, the weather prophet, thus predicts what the weather will be in January: Disturbances from 3d to 6th, clear to 8th, then blizzards and storms over the 14th, followed by a cold wave and more storms. From the 19th to 25th storms will alternate with clear days. The latter part of the month will also have storms, especially from 27th to 30th.

Miss Celia Rothermel, residing at Elysburg, a village five miles north of Shamokin, is laboring under the strange hallucination that she is a second Virgin Mary. On Christmas day Miss Rothermel took some bed clothing and provisions and sought a manger, where she believed she would give birth to a second Messiah. She was not found until Saturday and had to be dragged from the stable where she had sought shelter.

The Greencastle Echo-Pilot tells of some big hogs: On Monday afternoon Gideon Rahauser had the champion porkers of the season slaughtered. There were two of them and their aggregate weight was 1,209 pounds, one weighing 610 and the other 599. But for an accident happening to them during the summer, when they were both injured and could not eat for two months, these hogs would undoubtedly have averaged between 750 and 800 pounds. John Goetz and Wm. Moore conducted the butchering.

Chambersburg can, with pride point to her many beautiful and attractive stores. Indeed, strangers are unanimous in saying, we have finer stores, than one generally finds in places of equal size. Among the latest improvements in our town is the handsome new Soda Fountain which Wm. G. Greenawalt placed in his drug store on the Diamond last week. It is built of Mexican onyx with an ornamental cabinet top of white enamel and gold, with large plate mirror. It is a great addition to his already beautiful store, as well as a credit to our town.

PERSONAL PARAGRAPHS.

Items of Interest About Your and Our Friends and Those Whom We All Know.

D. J. Faust, one of Mercersburg's active and prosperous business men spent Tuesday in Chambersburg on business.

Miss Myrtle Forbes, a teacher in the Huntingdon schools, spent a portion of the holiday season with her cousins, Misses Mary and Rebecca Forbes, Queen street.

J. A. Hudson, of the firm of Hudson Brothers who have a meat market on Market street has just returned from a week's visit among friends in Pittsburg. He enjoyed his vacation very much.

On account of impaired health, James Adams, conductor on the South Penn, is off duty temporarily. Will Edmondson, baggageman on the main line of the C. V., is in charge of the South Penn trains for the time being.

Prof. John P. Hays and Mrs. Hays, of Hanover, Pa., have been spending the holidays with the family of D. A. Flora, his brother-in-law, in Chambersburg. Mr. Hays is one of the very acceptable teachers in the public schools of Hanover.

John W. Nusbaum has sold his hotel in Upper Strasburg to John R. Gabler who will take possession about April 1. Mr. Nusbaum has not yet determined what he will engage in. He goes out of the hotel business, it is understood, because of his wife's delicate health.

Dr. Cephas L. Bard of California, has been spending some time in the medical colleges and hospitals in Philadelphia and New York, and visiting his sisters and other friends in Chambersburg. He will return west in a few days. His daughter, Miss Blanch Bard, has been attending art schools in the east.

Sheriff Jones' family moved from the jail yesterday. He will have charge of the jail until Monday next and will supply the prisoners with their dinner on that day, after which Sheriff Greenawalt will have entire charge of the jail and office. He and Deputy Jones will be sworn in on that day.

D. W. Gipe, wife and children, of Lemaster, spent Sunday with friends in and near Shippensburg. Mr. Gipe and family have recently moved from Fulton county and are now on their farm near Lemaster where they propose to remain. Mr. Gipe was a pleasant New Year's caller at the REVIEW office; he is a personal friend of the publisher and likes the paper.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Wilt, Waynesboro, spent Friday with their daughter, Mrs. T. M. Keyser, Nelson street. Mr. Wilt is employed in the Geiser works and is one of the most trusted and efficient workmen in the shops. For 28 years he carried on blacksmilhing in Mcconnellsburg in the same shop, and was widely known for his excellent work and for his bright, cheery manner. Mr. Wilt is certainly a typical mechanic and in his work, disposition and honest principles, reminds one of Longfellow's Village Blacksmith.

Abraham Lincoln."

It should not be forgotten that Henry Watterson, of the Louisville, Ky., Courier Journal will lecture in Rosedale on Tuesday evening, February 4. Subject, "Abraham Lincoln." It is needless to say that such an orator as Mr. Watterson, with such a subject as Abraham Lincoln, will not want for hearers. Mr. Watterson comes to Chambersburg by arrangement of members of Housum Post, G. A. R.

Tennessee's Chief Justice Arrested.

Chief Justice Snodgrass, of Tennessee, was arrested Monday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by John R. Beasley, charging him with assault with intent to kill. The specific act was the shooting at Beasley in a lawyer's office because of a criticism by Beasley of a decision of the Supreme Court.

The warrant was served quietly by a county constable and was taken out at Sherman Heights, five miles in the country, and was kept very quiet.

Hon. Edward McPherson's Will.

By his will, dated March 10, 1893, Mr. McPherson gives to each of his children, John Bruce, William Lenhart, Norman Crawford, and Donald Paxton, and Annie Dunlop, each the sum of $1,000; all the remainder of his estate, real and personal, he bequeaths to his wife absolutely, and he appoints his wife executrix. The will was probated Dec. 28, and on Mrs. McPherson's renunciation, two of the sons, John B. and Donald P. McPherson, were appointed administrators c. t. a.—Gettysburg Compiler.

DeMoss Family Vocalists, Musicians and Bell Ringers,

Tickets are on sale by members of Housum Post for the entertainment by the De Moss family of vocalists, musicians and bell-ringers on Thursday night next, January 9, in Post Hall. This will be a rare musical treat and none should miss it. It is for the benefit of the Post fund which has run very low. Price of tickets 25 cents.

Having been recently supplied with comfortable chairs the Post Hall is one of the most pleasant and comfortable audience rooms in Chambersburg.

A Colored Woman Given Damages.

In the suit of Ella Carry against Samuel Spencer, as receiver, and others, tried before Judge Bartlett, in Brooklyn, he has rendered a decision holding that the law of the state of Tennessee, requiring conductors to compel colored persons to ride in an inferior car, is void. The plaintiff bought a first-class ticket from New York to Knoxville, Tenn., and as she passed into the state of Tennessee at about midnight, she was compelled to leave the first-class car, with her small children, and ride in the "Jim Crow car." The Judge awarded $500 damages, besides costs, against the defendants.

A Worthy Couple United.

At the home of Joseph Rebok, Orrstown, on the 25th of December, at high noon, his only daughter, Martha M. Rebok, was united in marriage to John Upperman, of Denver, Col. formerly of this county. The bride is one of Franklin county's fairest daughters; she was attired in steel colored satin rhadame. Promptly at 12 M., to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march rendered by Miss Ella Blair. Thomas Rebok and Miss Lillie Bollinger followed by the bride and groom, entered the parlor where there were assembled seventy-five of their friends to witness the ceremony which was performed by Rev. J. E. Kleffman, of Scotland. Immediately after the ceremony all repaired to the dining room where a bountiful wedding dinner was served and enjoyed by all.

The presents were many and useful and evinced the high estimation in which the young couple are held. Mr. and Mrs. Upperman will make their future home in Peoria, Ill.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond—The Death Record In Franklin County and Elsewhere.

Reuben Cashman, who had been in the employ of D. C. Ebersole & Co., at their coal yard, died at his home on East Market street, on Monday, aged about 58 years. His wife died four years ago last Christmas. He is survived by two sons, Albert and Wiley, one sister and four brothers. Funeral Wednesday afternoon; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

***

Mrs. Elsie, the widow of the late Solomon Hockenberry, died in Concord, December 21, 1895, aged 78 years. She was sick only a few days. She is survived by the following named children: Frank, Mrs. Lizzie Weitzel, Reading; Ellen Brackbill, Mt. Union; Mrs. Jennie Brackbill and Mrs. Tillie Titzel of Chambersburg.

***

Nancy, wife of Rush Rife, died at her home near Keefers, on Sunday, in the 32nd year of her age. The funeral took place yesterday morning; interment in the graveyard near Lehman's church.

***

Matilda, widow of Peter Dorty, died at her home on East Market street, Monday morning, in her 68th year. The funeral took place yesterday at 1 o'clock; interment in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Hon. T. M. Mahon's Chief Clerk Appointed

Hon. T. M. Mahon has appointed Dr. A. D. Dalbey, McConnellsburg, Chief Clerk of the committee on war claims. Dr. Dalby has been chairman of the Republican committee in Fulton county for several years, and has intelligence and ability and his standing in his party entitles him to the position to which he has been appointed. The doctor is to be congratulated on receiving an appointment which he deserves. Dr. Dalbey came to Chambersburg Monday and was notified of his appointment.

Notice.

Those persons who are willing to accommodate delegates to the G. A. R. encampment in June next are requested to make known to any of the following named persons how many they will entertain, whether by boarding or lodging or both and whether they prefer men or women or whether they can accommodate both. They should also state their charges:

E. L. Wesley, Montgomdry House; J. F. Vanderau, Union House; Chas. Levan, F. W. Day, John Eckels, South Main; B. F. Johns, South Second; Geo. A. Minnich, King; H. H. Woodal, West Market.

A Masonic Banquet.

George Washington Lodge, F. and M. No. 143, observed St. John's Day, Friday last with the annual installation of officers and banquet. The officers are W. M., J. A. Strite; S. W., H. G. Wolf; J. W., Garnet Gehr; Secretary, A. C. McGrath; Treasurer, George Bietsch. Members of the order were present from all sections of the Cumberland Valley from Harrisburg to Winchester. Upwards of 100 sat down to the table. A. L. Langdon was toastmaster. Paul John furnished the banquet which was excellent and well served. The occasion was greatly enjoyed by all present. B. L. Maurer is District Deputy Grand Master for this district.

He Traveled Around the World.

"Owney," the canine globe trotter, passed through here Wednesday, says the Huntingdon Local News, on a Pennsylvania railroad train, bound for his home in Tacoma, Washington. He left there August 19 on a trip around the world, and traversed the Pacific ocean, China sea, Strait of Malacca, Indian ocean, Gulf of Aden, Red Sea, Suez canal, Mediterranean sea, Straits of Gibraltar and Atlantic ocean, arriving in New York on board the steamship Port Phillip on December 24. More than ten years ago Owney wandered into the post office at Albany, was picked up and put aboard one of the mail trains and traveled the continent over and over again. From his leather collar dangled 196 brass tags or souvenirs from the various places he has visited.

Leap Year—The Calendar Wrong.

This is Leap Year and the last one for eight years. The ladies need not be told to make the most of their opportunities. They will understand all about that. Some of their own sex could probably tell them in sorrow that it is often wiser to reject proposals of marriage than for them to make or accept them.

Only those years which close the century are Leap Years if they are divisible by 400.

It is well to know that according to what are believed to be the most accurate computations, this year is not 1896 but 1900 A. D. In fixing up our present calendar somebody made a mistake of four years, so we are so much behind the actual number of years since the beginning of the Christian era.

They Have Become Republicans.

H. B. McNulty, Esq., and Dr. John A. Bouse, have both announced publicly that hereafter they will vote with the Republican party. 'Squire McNulty is not in favor of the Democratic tariff nor with the manner in which the present administration treats the soldiers in regard to pensions. We have not heard Dr. Bouse's reasons for his change of political views, but understand they are similar to those of Mr. McNulty. There is no question that many soldiers have left the Democratic party because of the course and rulings of the Pension Department under Hoke Smith, but many of these have not come out openly and announced their "change of base."

She Slept For Nine Days.

A nine-days' sensation, and one which the inhabitants have not yet ceased talking about, took place at Banksville, near Pittsburg. Mary Ann Chappelle, a school teacher, was apparently asleep for nine whole days, and her father's house was crowded with neighbors, who brought enough advice with them to have cured the universe. But the advice was not heeded and Miss Chappelle is all right now. Mary is a pretty girl with pink cheeks and bright eyes and is twenty years old. She does not weigh over 110 pounds. When she went to bed on the night of Monday, December 16, tired and nervous, she sank into a trance-like sleep, which continued until Christmas, when she awoke and, after saying, "I am going to get up," did so greatly to the relief of her family and friends.

During the period of her trance, she came to partial consciousness several times, at least enough so as to swallow a little nourishment. She maintains that during the entire time her mind was a blank, and that she neither saw nor dreamed.

IN THE COURT HOUSE.

Change of County Officers—Some Go Out Others Go In.

Monday Robt. G. Jones will retire from the office of Sheriff of Franklin county and will be succeeded by Saml. G. Greenawalt, whose bond has been perfected but who has not yet been sworn into office. Ex-Sheriff Jones carries with him in his retirement, the kindly wishes and regard of all his old friends and many new ones that he made during his official term. It may be truthfully said without making invidious distinctions or comparisons that no one ever retired from that office with wider popularity, or with more friends than he has today. While always prompt and faithful in the discharge of his duties he has oppressed nobody beyond what was required of him as an officer of the law and so far as can be learned, he has not one enemy, even among those with whom he had unpleasant official duties to perform, and if his term has been a profitable one to him no one begrudges him what he has been wise enough to save, for he certainly has not been mean or stingy. May he be successful in his future business prospects.

Sheriff Greenawalt goes into office with the good wishes and congratulations of all—even those who opposed him at the polls. That he will make a good sheriff goes without saying. He has already been quite modestly making himself acquainted with the duties of his office and there is no reason to fear that his administration will fail to meet the expectations of the people.

While there were a number of applicants for the position of Deputy, every one must commend the wisdom of Sheriff Greenawalt on retaining James M. Jones in that position. Mr. Jones has been known as a careful business man ever since his early manhood. He became mail agent on the South Penn branch which position he held for half a score of years. Since then he has been a successful farmer and general man of business, and while serving as Deputy Sheriff the past three years, he has made no mistakes but many friends. Sheriff Greenawalt is to be congratulated on having reappointed Mr. Jones, and can feel assured that all the business under his charge will be faithfully done.

Charles Walter, Esq., retires from the office of District Attorney with the knowledge that he has been faithful in the discharge of his duties, holding up his end of the commonwealth cases that came before him, as vigorously as possible. Mr. Walter will continue the practice of law in Chambersburg. His successor, J. H. Light, Esq., is making himself acquainted with the duties of his office which will begin actively at the February term of court.

Local Institute.

The teachers of Greene township will hold a local institute in the U. B. church in Scotland, on Friday and Saturday, February 8 and 9, 1896.

The program is as follows: Friday, 1.30 p. m.—Devotional exercises. Music, Organization.

"How can I make this institute a success?" D. C. Morrison.

"How to manage the pupil who will not study," C. A. Hassler.

Address—J. B. White.

Evening entertainment—Recitation, Miss Helen Bitner. Lecture—Rev. W. H. Washinger.

Saturday morning—Devotional exercises. Music.

"How can a taste for good reading be cultivated?" H. A. Bitner.

"How can parents assist the teacher?" Miss Lizzie Etter.

"Penmanship and how to teach it," W. E. Glass.

"How to secure attention in the recitations," H. N. Cramer.

"How to economize time in the common schools," J. Harvey Martin, A. F. Snoke.

Saturday afternoon—Devotional exercises. Music. Tardiness and irregularity of attendance: (a) "What can parents do to prevent them?" Miss Mary Beck; (b) "What can teachers do to prevent them?" John Hargleroad.

Address—Superintendent W. F. Zumbro.

"The value of monthly reports," C. E. Plasterer.

Address—Prof. I. L. Bryner.

"Public schools and public morals," Rev. J. E. Kleffman.

Watchmeeting In the M. E. Church.

Watchnight services were held in the Methodist church from 9:30 to midnight of the last night of the year. The first hour was occupied with an excellent sermon, applicable to the occasion from the words: "The harvest is past; the summer is ended, and I am not saved." The second hour was given to testimonies. Among the most impressive words uttered were those of "Aunt" Lizzie Keagy and S. Miller Shillito. Mrs. Keagy's age of more than 80 years, her confidently expressed conviction that through the mercy and favor of God the words of the text do not apply to her, her joyous prospect of entering into perfect rest, created a profound impression upon all who heard her Mr. Shillito is the senior male member of the church. He was a member of the congregation before the present church edifice was erected, and the great comfort of his life has been found in participating in all the services of the church since his boyhood. Others spoke with much earnestness and the petition of all was for a life more earnestly devoted to the service of Christ during the year about to open than in any year in the past.

The closing minutes of the year were spent in consecrating prayer, the audience all being on their knees until a few moments before midnight when all joined, still kneeling, in the consecration hymn, the music of which blended with the sound of the clock bell as it tolled out the last moments of the dying year. After wishing all a Happy New Year in a kindly but brief address, Rev. Mosser dismissed the congregation with the benediction. As the people separated there was a general handshaking and kindly greeting, then all said "good morning" and repaired to their homes.

Election Officers Appointed.

Judge Stewart has appointed the following election officers for the four districts into which Peters township has been divided: First district, house of John F. Snyder; Judge, Jacob Funk; Inspectors, D. J. Faust, John Reed. Second district, Fort Loudon, Baer's hotel; Judge, William McDonald; Inspectors, W. M. Gift, J. F. Mullen. Third district, school house, Lehmaster; Judge, S. G. Hege, Inspectors, Charles Gluck, F. S. Ebersole. Fourth district, Upton, T. E. Lesher's saddler shop, Judge, J. D. Lesher; Inspectors, Jacob Light, Jr., William Frye.

Off With the Old—On With the New.

There was but little demonstration in speeding the old year or in greeting the new one. There was some firing of explosives by the boys but not so much as usual. The boys of Housum Post fired several discharges from the cannon early on Tuesday evening, which waked the schoes. The disturbance during the night was not sufficient to keep sleepy people awake.

Very quiet was Chambersburg all day New Years. Some of the business places were open part part of the day, while some remained closed the entire day. There were not many people in town and there seemed to be but little outdoor pleasuring. There were several social gatherings of young people in the evening in which many enjoyed themselves.

The air during the entire day was crisp and bracing and hastened the steps of those who had business on the streets. Quite early in the evening the streets became more than usually quiet, indicating that the social enjoyments were mostly within doors and in the homes.

There is no means of knowing yet how many new resolutions were formed or how long they will be kept.

The REVIEW greets its growing list of subscribers and patrons with the sincere wish that the present year may be for all a better year than any they have known. It will probably depend largely on themselves whether it shall be so.

St. Thomas Lutherans' Celebration.

The Lutheran Sabbath school held its annual festival on Christmas evening. The front of the church was very tastefully decorated. The audience was very large and gave the closest possible attention to a varied program of very excellent music, responsive readings and recitations. Prof. Zentmeyer's orchestra assisted in the rendition of the music and the members acquitted themselves with great credit. All the participants acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner and our Lutheran brethren can certainly congratulate themselves on the grand success of their festival. The treat consisted of candy neatly arranged in boxes for the purpose and oranges. Rev. Crouse made an address appropriate to the happy and festive occasion and thanked his parishioners as he has been the recipient of many acts of kindness since assuming the pastorate. One of the acts was the presentation of a new cutter at the close of these exercises. The presentation address was made in a very appropriate and pleasing manner by the worthy superintendent of the school, H. Rush Reed, Esq.; Rev. Crouse feelingly responded. Some of the teachers were also very kindly remembered in a tangible way by their pupils. The Methodist and U. B. Sunday schools also treated their pupils but had no other outward demonstration. Union services will be held in the various churches during the week of prayer.

The Work of the Storm—Much Damage Done by the Wind.

The storm of Thursday evening last did considerable damage in many sections. In Waynesboro part of the slate roof was blown from Daniel Johnston's dwelling and other damage to buildings, fences, etc. was done. Part of the roof was also blown from W. S. Ashway's house in Letterkenny; trees were uprooted and fences carried away. Wm. Grove's wood house was blown down and wrecked completely. There was quite a hurricane in Hagerstown. Part of the roof was torn off the Baldwin House. Chimneys were blown down, telegraph and electric light poles were broken off and wires much tangled. Cars were damaged at Cherry Run and the railroad track obstructed. A high trestle over Antietam creek on the B. & O. railroad was blown down; it was 400 feet long. Trains were stopped for hours.

In many sections of the state the storm was quite violent and did a great deal of damage.

The strawboard mill of J. Allison Eyster and son in Halltown, West Virginia, was badly damaged by the storm. One building was blown down and the roof blown from the main building. The loss by damage to machinery was considerable.

CHURCH AND SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Lesson For Sunday, January 5.

International Bible lesson for Sunday, January 5, 1896, from Luke 1: 5-17. Title: The Forerunner of Christ. Golden Text: "Thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways." There is a period of 400 years between the writing of the book of Malachi—the last book of the Old Testament—and the birth of Christ. And in that interval we read of no revelation from God to men by prophecy if we except the message of the angel to Zacharias the priest who was the father of John the Baptist.

It will be noted that the Old Testament was written in Hebrew and the gospels and epistles of the New Testament were written in Greek. This is accounted for by the fact that the Greek had supplanted the Hebrew language even in Palestine, because many of the Jews who had been scattered by the wars in which they had been engaged for centuries, had spent years among the people who spoke the Greek language. Alexander the Great had carried the language into Asia as far as Babylon where he miserably died.

Zacharias and Elisabeth lived in a village four miles west of Jerusalem but he, as priest, officiated in the temple in the city. The visit of the angel occurred about 15 months before the birth of Christ.

Dr. H. Clay Trumbull in the Sunday School Times gives the following "Illustrated Applications" on the lesson:

Herod, Zacharias, Abijah, Aaron, Elisabeth (v. 5.) Human history is marked in its progress by human lives. If we go back to old times, we note the dates as the day of such a man. Particular men and women of modern days are centres of historic interest. So it has been, so it will be. We put our impress on our times, and our times put their impress on us. We help to shape the times, and the times help to shape us. "None of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself." We have a work to do at the present time that affects others for now and hereafter. It may be for evil, like Herod; it may be for good, like Zacharias or Elisabeth. It must be for good or ill.

They were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless (v. 6.) If we are true to God in our day and sphere, we shall be honored and loved of God. God holds his dear ones in lasting remembrance. Even if they are forgotten in heaven. And the record of them is as true as it is sure. When the time comes for their best service of God, God will make use of them. Every godly, woman, has a place in the heart and in the plans of God, and this shall be shown in due time.

It came to pass, while he executed the priest's office before God in the order of his course (v. 8). If we want to be specially honored of God, or to get peculiarly near to God, the best thing for us to do is to stick to our special duty, and to be found at the post where we belong. If God wants to send us a rick blessing, he is likely to send it to the place where we ought to be. If we are not there just then, we may fail to receive it. It is always safe to be where we belong; it is never safe to be elsewhere.

There appeared unto him an angel . . . Zacharias was troubled (vs. 11, 12). Zacharias was a real good man; but he was a man; and he was a good deal like other men. Zacharias doesn't seem to have been so much troubled by Herod's rule as he was by an angel's visit. God's messenger was more of a trouble to him than the devil's agent. Tnat is too often the way among men. To be sure, Zacharias didn't at the moment recognize the angel as God's messenger; or he wasn't quite sure of the reason of the angel's visit. There again he was like the rest of us. We don't recognize God's messengers when they come to us. And we lack the restful trust in God which would make us welcome any messenger, with any message, which God would send.

He shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and he shall drink no wine nor strong drink (v. 15). Why are these two things connected just here? Is it to show that a man can be great in God's sight, even though he does not drink wine? Or is it to show that greatness in God's sight is perfectly consistent with teetotalism? Evidently there is no intimation that even moderate drinking—"temperance" as some call it in contrast with "abstinence"—is sure to accompany greatness and goodness in God's sight. John the Baptist had liberty in the gratification of his appetite,—liberty to let intoxicating drink wholly alone, and he exercised that liberty all his life long. There's no harm in following his example so far.

To turn the hearts of the fathers to the children (v. 17). It is a sign of the approach, or of the progress, of Christ's kingdom, when the hearts of the fathers are turned to the children. When the parents lack childlikeness, and sympathy with children, the devil's cause, and not Christ's, is prominent. The devil is always suggesting that the minister had better give his strength to the old folks, and let the children be cared for by somebody else; that children's sermons and children's services are beneath the dignity of the pulpit; and that the family is all-sufficient for the impressing and training of the children. This doctrine was rebuked by our Saviour when he reminded the scribes and Pharisees that children's praise was sweetest to his Father, and when he taught his disciples that children were entitled to the first place, and not the lowest, in his service, both as their charge and their example. There is quite as truly need that John the Baptist's work of turning the hearts of the fathers to the children be done over again nowadays, as that his preaching of repentance unto good works be repeated.

Mrs. Noe, of Little Rock, Ark., was arrested for wearing bloomers on the street. She was released without bail on her promise to appear for trial the next day on a charge of masquerading in male attire. She did not appear, and a court messenger was sent to her house. He came back with the following delicately-penned missive:

"Dear Sir: I am busy making a new pair of bloomers to appear at court in.
MARTHA NOE.

"P. S.—Please continue the case until the bloomers are properly fitted. M. N."

One of the principal exhibits in the agricultural display at the Atlanta Exposition is that of Miss Annie Dennis, of Talbotton, Ga., a young woman only twenty-five years of age. She owns a fine estate of about a thousand acres, which she personally superintends. She began farming seven years ago, and since then has captured more than a hundred prizes at the various fairs with the products of her husbandry.

The Human Voice Heard 18 Miles Away.

Eighteen miles is the longest distance on record at which a man's voice has been heard. This occurred in the Grand Canon of the Colorado, where one man shouting the name of Bob at one end, his voice was plainly heard at the other end, which is eighteen miles away.

Lieut. Foster, on Peary's third Arctic expedition, found that he could converse with a man across the harbor of Port Bowen, a distance of 6,696 feet, or about one mile and a quarter, and Sir John Franklin said that he conversed with ease at a distance of more than a mile. Dr. Young records that at Gibraltar the human voice has been heard at a distance of ten miles. Sound has remarkable force in water. Colladon, by experiments made in the Lake of Geneva, estimated that a bell submerged in the sea might be heard at a distance of more than sixty miles. Franklin says that he heard the striking together of two stones in the water half a mile away. Over water or a surface of ice sound is propagated with greater clearness and strength. Dr. Hutton relates that on a quiet part of the Thames, near Chelsea, he could hear a person read distinctly at the distance of 140 feet, while away from the water the same could only be heard at seventy-six feet.

Persons in a balloon can hear voices from the earth a long time after they themselves are inaudible to people below.

General Pickett and a Boundary Dispute.

Some one in Richmond calls attention to the fact that in one of the most serious disputes the United States has had with Great Britain over a boundary question a Virginian bore the most prominent part—Captain George E. Pickett, of the United States army, afterward the famous General Pickett, of the Confederate army. In 1856, during the disagreement anent the northwest boundary, Captain Pickett, with sixty men, was ordered to occupy San Juan Island, and Sir James Douglass sent three British warships to eject him. Pickett bade defiance to this show of force, threatening to fire upon any troops that attempted to land from the vessels, and a clash of arms was only prevented by the timely arrival of the British admiral, by whose orders the matter of endeavoring to take possession of the island vi et armis was postponed. Subsequently Pickett was reinforced and the danger of hostilities blew over. For his conduct on this occasion Captain Pickett was highly complimented, and the Legislature of Washington Territory passed resolutions of thanks to him.—Philadelphia Times.

An Irishman's Brilliant Idea.

Some Irishmen are naturally stupid, but their mistakes at times are so humorous as to provoke a laugh, which makes one forget the more serious part of the error. Recently a son of Ireland went out rowing on the lake at a famous summer resort. A stiff northwest wind came up, and, not being skillful with the oars, in a short time his boat shipped considerable water. A brilliant idea then seized him, and, taking the butt end of the oar, he battered away at the planks in the bottom of the boat, finally knocking a hole in them. Fortunately for him a steam launch with a pleasure party aboard came along and rescued him as his boat sank. Upon being asked why on earth he drove a hole through the boat he replied: "An' phwat else would yez do? Sure the boat was half full of water, an' so I knocked a hole in the bottom to let it out; but, yes seen, there was so much more water in the lake that the little bit of a stream in my boat had no chance to get out."—Harper's Round Table.

Romance In The Life Of General Crook.

Gen. Crook's widow, whose death is announced from Oakland, Md., was a sister of the confederate ranger Jim Daly, who belonged to the daring party of raiders that captured Gens. Crook and Kelly at Cumberland, Md., during the civil war. Daly was a member of McNeill's Partisan rangers, a semi-independent organization operating in the Shenandoah Valley. McNeill's command had done a vast amount of mischief on the border and was much feared and hated by the union troops. Many of the men were recruited in Cumberland and just across the river in Virginia, so that the command was thoroughly familiar with the border. This fact and the knowledge that Gens. Crook and Kelly thought themselves peculiarly secure in Cumberland, surrounded as they were by 10,000 of their own troops, led to the conception of the scheme of capture.

The whole command numbered only a few hundreds, and the rangers usually operated in parties of from ten to fifty. A band of especially trusted men, some or whom were thoroughly familiar with the border were selected to make the attempt upon the liberty of the two generals at Cumberland. The intended captives were known to be lodged at the chief hotel of the city, and friends of the rangers reported from Cumberland that the commanders were very negligently guarded. A dark night was chosen for the attempt, and the little band of confederates reached the Maryland side of the Potomac without mishap. Having entered Cumberland, they rode through the streets of the sleeping city and went directly to the hotel of the generals. The gas was burning brightly about the hotel, but the sentinels were captured without any resultant alarm. A negro hall boy was seized and made to direct the visitors to the rooms of the men they sought. The boy lacked the wit to misdirect the confederates, and in a few minutes Gens. Crook and Kelly were aroused and placed under arrest. They were made to dress hastily, mounted on good horses, and taken from the city before the alarm was given. Before the confederates and their captives reached the confederate lines hundreds of federal troops were in pursuit, but the audacious little band could not be captured, and the prisoners were delivered to Capt. McNeill, who saw that they were sent to higher authorities in the confederacy. Jim Daly came out of the confederacy and returned to Oakland, where his father kept a hotel. It was there that the brother's whilom prisoner met and married the sister.—New York Sun.

A Kind Voice.

There is no power of love so hard to get and to keep as a kind voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart, and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels, and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone. One must start in youth and be on the watch night and day, at work and play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or a tone that is sharp, and it sticks to him through life, and stirs up ill-will and grief, and falls like a drop of gall on the sweets of home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the seas. A kind voice is to the heart what light is to the eye. It is a light that sir gs as well as shines.

Ephraim's Sin.

Uncle Silas was a very honest and pious old colored man who preached on Sundays, and had a great influence for good upon the others in the settlement. During one of his revival seasons, among a dozen or so at the mourners bench, was a black boy called Eph, about 20 years old, and Silas was greatly rejoiced to see him come forward, and at once went to him. Eph was crying.

"Hain't no use in my comin' up," he sobbed. "I'se sinned away de day ob grace."

"No, you ain't, brudder," protested Uncle Silas. "You am de kin' what de Lawd wants to save. All you got to do is to gib up sin."

"I'se dun done dat, Uncle Silas," sobbed Eph, "but dey ain't no salvation fer me."

"Yes dey is, too, honey. Dey ain't no sin so black dat hit ain't washed white as snow."

"I done stole fo' chickens las' week," confessed the penitent.

"Dat's all fuggib, Eph'm."

"An' two de week befo', Uncle Silas."

"Dat's fuggib, too, Eph'm."

"An two de week befor' dat, Uncle Silas."

"Dat's all right, too, Eph'm."

"But dem two was you'n, Uncle Silas. Dem fat pullets you put so much sto' by, Uncle Silas."

"Wha' dat?" exclaimed Uncle Silas, suddenly.

"Dem las' wuz yo' pullets, Uncle Silas," sobbed Eph.

Uncle Silas became solemn and stern.

"I recon, Eph'm," he said, slowly, "You' case needs advisement wid pra'r. I ain' sho' dat we wanter be clattern' up de Kingdom of Hebben wid chicken thieves, an' you better stay right on de mo'ners bench till de meetin' am done, an' we kin dezamine yo' state ob sin for perticklers."—Free Press.
